It is a good rule to accept only such medicines as, after long trial, have proved worthy of confidence. This is a case where other people's experience may be of service, and it has been the experience of thousands that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the best cough medicine ever used.

By lack of open air exercise, and the want of sufficient care in the matter of diet, the whole physical mechanism becomes impaired during the winter. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the proper remedy to take in the spring of the year to purify the blood, excite the liver to action, and restore health and vigor.

We have been informed that the board of supervisors have never levied an amount exceeding $1.90 on each one hundred dollars worth of property in this county for county purposes, but that the balance of the tax is made up from the sinking fund, interest on bonds, etc., that is prescribed by law.

A fire occurred at Daggett, Cal., on Thursday of last week, which causes the Calico Print's paper published at that place, to remark: "An effort was made to extinguish the fire with several Hand Grenades, but they were not as effective as a handful dirt thrown on the burning timbers. The hand grenades have proved to be worse than worthless on many occasions of fire, for the time spent in trying them could have been employed to a better advantage in the use of other means to extinguish fire." —Champion.

The editor of the Monplier (Vt.) Argus addresses his delinquent subscribers as follows: "Our opinion of —— is the same as that we have of any other man who does not pay for the newspaper that he takes—that is, he is a contemptible whelp, an ornery cuss, a white livered sneak, a skunk on two legs, a rectangular specimen of impecuniosity, and if we owned a hen house anywhere in his neighborhood we should see that it is kept severely locked. All this based on the fact that he has not paid for the Argus and Patriot that he has received."

Mr. A. Portfolios, the popular merchant of Tombstone, has just completed an addition to his extensive wholesale liquor and cigar department, in the shape of a new cigar stand. His reputation heretofore established in keeping the finest brand of cigars will insure him a large portion of the Tombstone trade. Mr. Portfolios will sell cigars and tobacco, both wholesale and retail, and all kinds of wines, whiskies, cordials, and in fact, everything that a saloon man could desire. Country dealers should make a note of this.

Newly appointed United States Treasurer Jordan arrived the Government Printing office the other day by taking off his coat slouching himself before an unoccupied case and beginning to set type with rapidity and accuracy. He had ordered a job done within four hours, and they had exclaimed, "Impossible?"

"There," said Jordan, after he had worked awhile, "that is the way I want work done for this government when I do order it. What I asked of you could have been accomplished in fifteen minutes, barring the unnecessary delays and red tape of this office. Hereafter, when I want a thing done within a specified time, remember that I know what I am talking about!" —Exchange.

Tombstone's prosperity was never more apparent than it was at the commencement of the present Indian troubles, business was reviving, travel was increasing rapidly, and everything looked as though we were on the high road to prosperity. Even the letting loose of the Apaches cannot very long interfere with our success it will come to us, because we have the wherewithal to provide for its coming. But we will say, that had there never been any Indians on Arizona's soil, Tombstone to-day, would have within her city limits fully thirty thousand people. But we will say to our citizens, it behoves them to beat themselves do not be generalised by small outside towns. Put your wares and merchandise down to a living price and encourage the ranchers and the cattlemen from the outside to come in to Tombstone and do their trading. With all respect to our neighbors of Willcox, Charleston, and Benson. We think that our traders here can undersell them, because they buy larger consignments of goods, consequently can purchase cheaper in the markets.

Reports from the San Bernardino ranch state that Lieutenant Davis was on his way to that place with some wounded scouts and fifteen scalps of Apaches that he took in a recent engagement with them in Sonora.

OUR SUMMERS.

WHAT A LADY TOLD THE CALL REPORTER.

Communication From W. H. McGrath of Charleston.

General Mansfield tells Los Angeles Express What He Thinks of Tombstone And its Prospects.

[Communicated.]

Editor TOMMERCIAL.—As the statement in the Record about the trouble here last week was grossly misrepresented, and has placed Charleston in a very undesirable light in comparison with strangers who desire to visit our town, I wish through the columns of the Record to give the people the facts of the case. There were no such state of affairs ever existed here as was represented in the Record, and there was nobody but except our worthy Justice of the Peace, who broke his nose by trying to break a Mexican out in one round.

Our constable was the whole cause of what little trouble there was. He tried to kill one of our citizens by shooting at him at night, and then the trouble ended with one. Burns called out the citizen that had been shot at by the constable and tried to beat him breaking out with a gun, but there was no one hurt, but if our constable had started in shooting the chances are that he would have shot some of the family that lived directly across the street and right in range of his gun. They never went into the saloon as stated and our constable had been an one else there would not have been any trouble at all. What I have written you are the true facts in the matter. Yours Respectfully,

WILLIAM H. MCGRATH,
Charleston, June 29th, 1888.

The Arizona Summer.

"How hot is it in Arizona?" inquired a San Franciscan of a lady who just arrived from that territory.

"Oh, we have delightful weather there nine months in the year, but the other three are not bad. But the heat is dry, so that one does not really feel it as much as the warm weather in New York. I assure you would be charmed with the climate there," she said with a fascinating smile.

"Doubtless," answered the San Franciscan, "that I have heard queer stories of what the heat of Arizona accomplishes."

"Oh there are a great many stories circulated about our climate," replied the lady readily. "Some of them are true and some are false. But I can tell you a true incident, which will give you an idea of the heat in the territory. My son was clerking in a grocery store in Phoenix last summer, and the dog, in the dog standing in the store actually hatched, without a hen being on them or any artificial heat being applied. The hatching was the unaided work of our sun and climate in Arizona." —S. F. City.

Passing over the A. T. & S. F. last week, when nearing El Paso we observed a mass of railroad material by the side of the track to pyramid. If anything were broken, timber, chains, links, car wheels, piled up to a tremendous height, beneath the whole forming the base, was the huge wrecked locomotive engine. Upon inquiry it was learned that on the day previous a train of forty cars loaded with stone for riprapping the river bank was passing at a rapid rate, when the engine reached the bridge of an arroyo, the structure gave way, and then, momentum of the heavily laden train pushed one car up on another until seventeen cars were heaped upon the ditched engine. Of course the whole was so sudden that it was impossible for the fireman and engineer to make an effort to escape. In a few moments all was quiet, as if a miracle had been performed, and the men in charge of the engine made their way from beneath the tangled mass as free from harm as the children were from the fire furnace. Such faith or such luck is not uncommon in these degenerate days.—St. Louis Herald.

From General Mansfield, who returned a few days since from a trip to Tombstone, the Express learns that times are temporarily quiet there, as the people are awaiting the result of the pumps. These pumps are as large, if not the largest, mining machinery, of the kind in the world. Forty mules were required to draw one walking beam. One balance wheel weighs thirty tons. The pistons are fourteen inches in diameter. The two pipes will extend to the 700 foot level of the Grand Central mine. When they get to work a large volume of water will flow to the San Pedro river. There were a good many people in Tombstone while General Mansfield was there, owing to the Indian scare. Tombstone is the neatest town in the territory he has seen. The climate is cool and comfortable. The place is supplied daily with fresh vegetables from the San Pedro river, whereas at first the nearest market was Los Angeles. When the water is pumped out of the mines the great bodies of low grade ore will be mined and Tombstone will again be happy.—Los Angeles Express.

A THIEF KILLED.

SHERIFF HATCH AND A POSSE OF MEN.

Pursue a Band of Mexican Horse Thieves Into the Huachuca Mountains

A Fight Ensues And One Mexican is Killed, And Another Captured.

A gang of Mexican horse thieves have been infesting this neighborhood for some time, and Sheriff Hatch has been hunting persistently for a clue to their whereabouts, which he failed to discover until yesterday afternoon, when he learned that his game was in the Huachuca mountains and he immediately started out with Deputy Charley Smith and a posse after them. When Smith reached Charleston he was reinforced by Deputy Sheriff Robert Downing and posse. Hatch and party went to the east Huachucas while Downing and his posse went to the west Huachucas. While the latter party were going up Carr's canyon they came upon their game and a fight ensued in which one of the horse thieves was killed outright and another one was captured.

Word was telephoned into the sheriff's office to day and also to the coroner, asking him to come out and hold an inquest. None of the sheriff's party were injured. Owing to the lateness of the hour, we could not get any further particulars, but will give all there are in our next issue.
